Morinville District Council Holds February Meeting

The dangerous condition of the railway crossing on Mile 20 between sections 32 and 33-55-25-W4th was brought to the attention of the Council of the Municipal District of Morinville at the February meeting held in the municipal council chambers at Morinville.

Upon motion of Councillor Schafers it was unanimously agreed to advise the Northern Alberta Railways of the condition and request that repairs remove the hazard.

Upon motion of Councillor Schafers it was unanimously agreed to advise the Northern Alberta Railways of the condition and request that repairs remove the hazard.

Re-routing of a bus to accommodate residents of Riviere Qui Barre received the attention of the council. The Canadian Coachways Bus holds the franchise for the giving of bus service through the municipality stopping at Riviere Qui Barre, Alcomdale, Busby and Picardville. Recently this company received permission from the Highway Traffic Board to suspend services until such time as all of the route is high graded and gravelled.

The Northland Arrows Line, which travels from Barrhead through Sion and thence to Alcomdale is not allowed to convey passengers from this district and travels two miles south then directly to Highway No. 2.

It was the decision of the Council to request the Highway Traffic Board to have the latter bus re-routed to pass through Riviere Qui Barre, now cut off from transportation facilities since no railroad serves the hamlet. The council's request will be that the Northland Arrow lines be allowed to carry passengers and give bus service until such time as Canadian Coachways are prepared to resume their service and exercise their franchise.

Messrs. Gunderson and R. P. McLean called upon the Council regarding the graveling they had done on the Municipal road between sections 21, 27 and 28-54-25-W4th at a cost to them of over $1,800.00, compared to the estimated cost of $1,250.00. As this was a lot more than what they had estimated and seeing they had gravelled one and one half miles of Municipal road a grant towards the over expenditure was requested from the Council.

It was moved by Councillor Schafers and carried that the sum of $300.00 be allowed for the graveling of the said road and that the same be charged to the Division One account.

The Secretary's letter regarding the blocking of the ditch between sections 27 and 28-54-25-W4th was read to the Council. Reply, dated January 29th, 1951, as received from K. W. Crowshaw, Regent Drilling Co., Ltd. advising that the matter would be taken care of within the next month and certainly before spring was read to the Council.

Letter dated January 29th, 1951 as received from J. H. Holloway, Director of Town Planning, regarding complaints as to advertisement signs between section 31-56-25-W4th and section 36-56-26-W4th was read.

It was moved by Councillor Walker that as it is contrary to law to place such signs on the road allowance that the parties involved be advised by Registered Mail that they are to remove any signs that they may have on the road allowance at the above location, any such signs must be erected on private property. Carried.

It was moved by Councillor Perrot and carried that the Auditor's financial statement and report be approved by the Council, that the same be made available to be read at the Annual Meeting of the ratepayers on the 17th.

The Secretary advised the Council there were still three parcels not redeemed which were to be offered for sale on February 14th. It was moved by Councillor Perrot and carried that offer price on any properties offered for sale at the tax sale be the assessed valuation of the property plus any reservation that may exist in the existing Duplicate Certificate of Title.

A letter regarding order No. 1297, file P.U. 3250 was read to Council. Moved by Councillor Walker that we incorporate this meeting for future reference.

Challenge to Albertans

Throughout the 37 year-old history of the Canadian Red Cross Society in Alberta, the people of the province have met many challenges, and not been found waiting. During the First World War, during the depression of the '30's, during the Second World War and up to the present time, Albertans have shown that they are Red Cross workers. No ideal has been too high-reaching for them to attain.

Because of the work it does, Red Cross must continue. It is Red Cross that gives Albertans free Blood Transfusion Service, Junior Red Cross, Disaster Relief, Outpost Hospitals, Veterans Aid, Swimming and Water Safety and care to their crippled children.

This work must be continued for the good of all. No one knows when disaster will strike, when illness will require bottles of blood and plasma, when the babe in your house will need orthopedic care beyond your finances.

This year, Red Cross is asking Albertans to contribute $400,000 to continue its work. Red Cross is planning to spend in Alberta this year, a total of nearly $600,000.

The care of crippled children looms foremost in the minds of Alberta people at present for it is this year, on March 3, that Alberta's Red Cross Crippled Children's Hospital will formally open its doors. Its support is up to Albertans, for while it is true that the hospital is necessary, it is equally true that we must not fail in helping its running expenses.

There is no more worthy work than that of Red Cross. When you contribute to its yearly campaign, you are merely paying a premium to ensure that the "work of mercy never ends".

Conscription

The Prime Minister has turned thumbs down on proposals for immediate institution of compulsory military service. While supporting the principle of compulsory military training, he says it is not a military necessity now and would place an undue burden on our national economy.

We admire Mr. St. Laurent for speaking out for conscription, in spite of criticism he is bound to get from his own people in Quebec. We never could understand why anyone would not want conscription for home defence. Certainly if the top brass among the military in Ottawa think it is necessary, no considerations of political expediency should cause a day's delay in passing the necessary order-in-council.

The United States has just extended the period of military training from 18 months to 27 months. If every young man in Canada, upon reaching the age of 17½ or 18 years were inducted into the Army, Air Force or Navy, and then released (provided there is by then no shooting war), it would not be any great loss to the labor supply. A lot of young hooligans would be taught to drive a tank or a gun tractor, instead of getting into police court for stealing cars.

Barring the advent of a great war, calling for full mobilization, we would in a few years have a fully trained reserve army of many thousands of young men. We need such a program of military training. We need it now.

Baptism of Fire

Last week Canadian troops went into action for the first time in Korea. It reminded us of a similar day, June 6, 1944, to be exact, when Canadians went into action, spouting fire and death on the bloody beaches of Normandy while Canadians at home prayed unashamedly in homes and in churches.

It isn't sufficient for us at this time to try and analyze the reasons why Canadians are fighting in another war. Our boys are "over there" now and more are soon to be dispatched to Korea. They are undergoing their baptism of fire. Meanwhile civilians may soon face national registration, price and wage control, and we are sending shiploads of low-grade wheat to starving India.

We have an idea that the Christian attitude of feeding our potential enemies is better than killing them, and cheaper in the long run. The Government is to be commended on using this method of helping forestall revolt in India while at the same time fighting to keep the peace in Korea.

Here and There

By T. W. PUE

Karl Maslyk, owner and manager of the Morinville Radiator Shop in Morinville is perhaps not a very voracious reader but nevertheless somewhat discriminating in his choice of literature.

Probably no one else in all of Alberta saw this interesting item in the Eastern daily, that had been plucked from the Peterborough Examiner. It is headed "A Bit of Advice" and reads like this:

T. W. Pue

A woman writes to an advice column asking: "What should I do when I find lipstick on my husband's shirt collar?" Our answer: remove as much of the pigment as possible with blotting paper and a hot iron, and then rub the remainder gently with soap and warm water. Oh, yes, and you might try sprucing up a bit, too.

ANOTHER DAILY—WHEN?

As I travel about the province people ask me when Edmonton will get another daily newspaper to take the place of the Edmonton Bulletin. You will remember that five weeks ago the Edmonton Journal declared they did not buy the Bulletin just after they had bought it out completely.

Well, if the Southams were to sell the present plant to a prospective competitor (a far-fetched proposition) it would be a little bit easier for another daily to start up. But the printers have now been largely dispersed along with many key staff members, the machinery is being moved out and the Southams have a stranglehold on the newspaper supply. They claim they didn't buy the Bulletin—but they got the life-blood of the paper—the newspaper quota, without any other publisher getting an opportunity to bid for it. I don't know how a daily newspaper could publish without newspaper.

Assuming, however, that you could get newspaper and a mechanical staff, you would still need $1,000,000.00 and two years to get organized. Would anyone like to try it?

A PROFITABLE DEAL

With absolutely no regard for the welfare of the employees of the paper they bought out, the Southam chain stands to make a cool $200,000.00 per year over and above their former profits.

By and large, daily newspapers' circulation revenues pay for the newspaper, but the Journal will get paid twice for the extra newspaper they use. A few days after the Bulletin went out of business they increased their advertising rate by about 50¢ per column inch, ostensibly to pay for the newspaper taken up by the extra circulation that gravitated to them with the demise of their competitor.

The extra circulation will bring them $200,000.00 per year additional revenue. Not bad—when you can gobble up the competition and increase your profits by a million dollars every five years!

Don't be surprised to see the Southam interests buy out competitors in other cities such as Vancouver, Calgary and perhaps snap up other independent papers in one-paper towns such as Medicine Hat.

WHEAT CONTRACTS

Britain is still very hard up and can't afford to pay world prices for our wheat. Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, was unable to get $1,000,000 more this year from the British Food Ministry. We contend that Canada can very well supply the hunger needs of the world by reduced prices and outright gifts but this should not be done at the sole expense of the wheat producer only. Pay our farmers the full market price, and pay the losses out of the whole economy of all Canadians—not just out of the pocket of the wheat farmers.

WE CAN'T WIN

The perils of publishing make an interesting subject to close this week's discussion. We recently carried news and editorial material about an issue concerning the lively towns of Mayerthorpe and Sangu, an advertiser in Sangu got sore at us for publishing a story giving the Mayerthorpe angle, and cancelled his advertisement to drive home his feeling into our hide where it hurts the most. Now we have a letter from Mayerthorpe demanding an explanation on why we published the Sangu side of the argument.

As long as we are publishing a paper, we insist on our right to publish all sides of each story, as we see fit; and those who don't agree with us can register their protest with a letter to the 'Voice' column here on our right. That's fair, isn't it?

Long years spent in school are worth little unless, during the educational process, young people learn to reason, to think for themselves intelligently and sanely.

Liquor Control

Dear Sir—In regard to our cartoon you published February 16th, and your comment that it had no application to the situation in Alberta, allow me to make this reply. Our way of handling liquor is admittedly better than that in Montreal or New York, or Reno, but still not above improvement. We are not criticizing the Liquor Control Board, nor the Hotel Keepers' Association, as such. The latter have a tough job indeed, trying to bring all their membership up to the approved standard. Naturally they don't succeed 100%. If they did beer would never be sold to minors; nor to those already under the influence; none would ever stagger out of the parlor at 10 p.m., or any other time. Whether we can call all men who put profits above public welfare by the term "racketeers" is a fine point of the use of English. But crimes can and do originate in licensed parlors. It is because of the unhealthy nature of the product they sell. Licensing an evil does not rob it of power to do harm. And all men of goodwill should be concerned to limit that harm to the minimum. I think there will be less cause for questioning the illustration we are sending you this week re the time taken to get over three drinks. Thanking you,

ROBT. G. THOMPSON,

Money for War

Dear Sir—We have been dragged into two world wars by such people as Ex-Artillery NCO, Sangu, who wrote about teenage hoodlums recently.

If he had his way we would not have a free choice as to whether we go to Korea to slaughter innocent people or stay in Canada and work for peaceful prosperity. It makes little difference to me whether a self-respecting recruiting officer will want me and I'm certain that the teen-agers feel the same. They want and need recreation facilities and jobs and security. With the money they spend for war surely a portion could be allocated for these great needs.

County Act

Dear Sir—County government is the form of local government used in the U.S.A., but it differs considerably from that proposed for Alberta. A few years ago I heard a Mystic foretell that B.C. would unite with the U.S.A. Now Astrology is predicting a union of Canada and the U.S.A., along with many other things for this decade.

In the U.S., each county has a county seat where these officials dwell and where the business is transacted. Each year the county assessor for his particular district visits each house and makes a list of all valuable things, piano, radio, gold watches, jewelry, feed, live stock, money on hand, value of real estate, chickens and dogs.

Anyone may run for any office he seeks; there are two parties. He or she in the county party publishes a notice that such an office is desired subject to the will of the voters. A primary election is held and the person receiving the most votes for his party must run against the opponent of the opposite party and the one receiving the most votes at the general election wins. No person may hold office more than two terms in succession. A term is two years.

There is a tract of county land adjoining the county seat upon which there are buildings to house live stock, poultry, vegetables, fancy work and canned goods. There is a race track and a pavilion for the spectators. Here the county fairs are held annually. A small sum is charged for admittance, except children under twelve.

Do any of these appeal to us when we talk of changing our system of government?

Drumheller.

Furore Rising Over Naming Of Calgary's Stampede Corral

By LORNE STOUT
(From Western Farm Leader)

What's in a name? A lot of people are asking this question throughout Alberta following the furore that has been stirred up over the naming of Calgary's new arena "Stampede Corral."

Some work for fame and greatness — others have it thrust upon them. Pompeii met disaster in the eruption of the volcano Vesuvius, Rome was burned by Nero, London had its great Plague San Francisco its earthquake, Nagasaki its atomic bomb, and Calgary the "Stampede Corral."

And, like an atom bomb, earthquake, fire and eruption, "The Corral" has rocked Calgary to its very foundations. It may have been a mere coincidence, but the Bow River for two weeks had been jammed with ice, flooding and sending people from their homes. Dynamite proved futile, but at the time the name for Calgary's new $1,400,000.00 hockey rink was announced — the ice jams in the Bow River shook loose, and there hasn't been even a threat of a flood since.

Why all the furore? It seems simply that a lot of Calgary people do NOT like the name Corral. For days after the decision was announced by the Board of Directors of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, it was not the favorite topic on street corners and at coffee counters — it was the ONLY topic.

The Corral had been jammed for the official opening, 8,800 to 9,000 filled all the available seats, something over 6,500, and crowded the rush space on the promenade to capacity and then some. All were duly impressed. It WAS without a doubt as fine an arena as could be found on the Continent. Perfection of planning, skilled workmanship, quality materials had been combined with due respect for both utility and beauty.

True, there was still this confusion of a name, but few at the opening hockey game, watching the home town Stampede's hand a drubbing to the league-leading Edmonton Flyers, were too greatly concerned. They had been handed ballots as they entered through the turnstiles, many sat through the game with the slips of paper in their hands, mulling over the half dozen names proposed. Some were still undecided when the game was over, and, failing to find ballot boxes, went home with the slip of paper still in their pocket or purse.

Eight thousand ballots were handed out, just over 2,700 turned in. A few days later the Exhibition and Stampede directors met to hear the result and decide, once and for all, on a name. Their decision was a compromise between "Calgary Corral" and "Stampede Gardens", and little consideration was given to Coliseum, under which the project had been started. "Gardens" was out — regardless of the vote. The majority of directors felt with New York, Toronto and Edmonton, to name but a few, using the name Gardens it was too stereotyped. Some directors were adamant that the word Stampede should be included — and so — "Stampede Corral" got the overwhelming vote.

"Fort Calgary", others plugged for "Chinook Arch", but there was no disagreement on one point . . . the entire Stampede Board felt the name should be something "different and original". Corral filled the bill. It was a name not to be forgotten, unusual enough to draw attention. But it could be pointed out that Edmonton missed a bet when it failed to call the improved Edmonton Arena the "Igloo", that Regina also slipped in straining along with the timeworn "Gardens" when "Pile O'Bones" would be much more historic and likely to attract attention, or what more suitable for Winnipeg's arena than "Fort Selkirk", "Fort Garry" or just plain "The Fort".

Driving Courses Planned By University of Alberta

Widening the field in instruction to prevent accidents, the University of Alberta will stage a course in driver training for teachers from Aug. 20 to 24 inclusive, sponsored by the Alberta Motor Association.

Arrangements have been made by the Edmonton branch, A.M.A.

Dr. Amos R. Noyhart of State College, Pa., an internationally known authority on driver training and teacher instruction, will conduct the course, which will handle a maximum class of 40 members.

Already many teachers have signified their intention of taking the course. Commercial firms also have made inquiries as to the prospects of having one of their experienced drivers enrolled, in the hope that the training can be given to others.

The same applies to the course for teachers. Those enrolled will be qualified to teach others and thus help meet the pressing demand for persons to act as teachers in carrying on this phase of safety work.

In the U.S., the work of teacher training for driver instruction purposes is steadily expanding and as a result many have enrolled. This year, the work will be expanded.

At the same time, high school driver training courses are drawing greater enrollments, increasing the need for more teachers.

CLYDE — Three curling rinks from Athabasca paid a visit to Clyde on Sunday afternoon, losing all their games.

Sharp of Athabasca was defeated by the Clyde rink, skipped by Gus Forsen and his team of Bert Woodcock, Modest Hryciw and Alec Cunningham. Shintinkir of Athabasca lost to Joe Hess' rink of Clyde, consisting of R. McMillan, Walter Rowland and Frank Jones. The Athabasca ladies rink skipped by Mrs. J. Hess, was defeated by Mrs. Gus Forsen's rink of Clyde, with Mrs. J. Hess, Mrs. B. Woodcock and Mrs. Kay Hryciw.

Refreshments were served to the players by Mrs. N. Main and Mrs. R. McMillan.

ALCOMDALE NEWS BRIEFS

The Intermediate School skating party was a very popular affair. Grade and high school pupils, former students and parents enjoyed a few hours of moonlight skating on smooth ice. The party then adjourned to the high school where the Inter-M's served just the right type of refreshments.

The Saturday night card parties at the hall are well-attended. There are rooms for more tables, if you like cribbage and whist.

LETTER TO LOUISA

Gay Times No Guide To Successful Marriage

Dear Louisa—I have been going with a divorced man and he has asked me to marry him.

I love him but I am worried for fear he will not be a good husband. He is fun on a party but he is always changing jobs. I understand that his first wife worked in an office all the time she was married excepting a few weeks each time the two babies were born. A friend also tells me that he does not contribute to the support of his children but that his wife and her parents support them. I hate to discuss money matters before we get married but all these rumors have me worried. What would you advise me to do?

B. L. M.

Answer:

He sounds like a mighty poor matrimonial bet to me. But let us look at the situation and give him the benefit of considering his side of things.

First, he is always changing jobs—if this means, that he gives up a poor job for a better one each time, there is nothing wrong in that but if he is an unsatisfactory worker and loses jobs because he is not dependable or efficient that is certainly one strike against him.

Next—his wife worked all of her married life. Well, some women like to work out of the home and some would rather work than live frugally on what their husbands make. On the other hand, if she had to work because he had a lazy husband who threw away what money he had on good times, that is the second strike against him.

Third—every man who brings children into the world is responsible for their support and if he is dodging that responsibility, that, to me would be the third strike against him and he would be definitely out as far as I was concerned.

Insofar as hating to discuss money matters with a future husband before you are married, that is the best time to discuss them. You can get his idea before you take the final step and believe me, if some of the women who marry tightwads and good time Charles knew what was in store for them, they would go on leading the single life and be happy about it.

My advice would be for you to talk to this man and find out from him if these rumors are true. If they are and you still love him enough to marry him, you will at least know what problems you have ahead of you.

LOUISA.

Early Prophet Condemned Hypocrisy In Religion

Isaiah, the greatest of the Hebrew prophets, condemned hypocritical worship, just as his predecessors had done.

Amos declared: "I hate, I despise your feasts and I will take no delight in your solemn assemblies. . . But let justice roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

Hosea said: "I desire goodness, and not sacrifice, and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings." Micah said: "He hath showed thee, O man what is good; and what doth Jehovah require of thee but to do justly and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Speaking through Isaiah, Jehovah says: "I have had enough of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth. . . When ye make many prayers, I will not hear: Your hands are full of blood. Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek justice; relieve the oppressed; judge the fatherless; plead for the widow."

"We have all noticed the vast difference between religious ceremony and moral life," declared Frederick B. Fisher. "It may be said with truth that as the moral life of a people declines, the religious ceremony seems to increase. The history of religious reform is the story of rebellion against excessive ritual and corresponding laxity in morals. And, strangely, the older an organized religion becomes, the more ritualistic it is."

"It was this fact which aroused Isaiah. He was a prophet of ethics. He could not hear to hear the name of God mentioned at a sacred altar by wicked priests; nor could he understand how wicked laymen could enter the temple; take part in the sacred ceremonies of worship, and come forth seemingly satisfied, when their lives were openly immoral. It was an intellectual appeal that he made."

In his conversation with the Samaritan woman, at Jacob's Well, near Sychar, Jesus taught the principles of true worship. The story is familiar and we are not concerned with any phase of it except the part of his conversation which deals with worship. In order to change the subject of conversation from her own personal sin and need of a savior, the woman asked Jesus to settle the long-standing dispute between the Jews and the Samaritans as to the right place in which to worship.

Jesus pointed out that God may be worshipped anywhere, the place not mattering nearly so much as the manner in which the worshippers worship. He declared: "God is the spirit and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and truth." Only sincere and real worship is acceptable to God. All worshippers need to remind themselves of this fact if they grow as they should in their experience and knowledge of God.

Paul, in the writing from his prison cell in Rome to the Christians at Colossi, gave these early Christians some suggested aids to real worship. He recognized the value of "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs" in group worship, in addition to teaching and admonishing and studying the "word of Christ."

Because regular worship attendance is a definite means of Christian growth, we are urged not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together (Heb. 10:25).
